1

Questions

1. What SQL command is represented by 'waitfor delay' in the provided source?

A. A delay execution command
B. A command to update records
C. A command to delete records
D. A command to insert data

2. What does '0:0:15' signify in a 'waitfor delay' statement in terms of time delay?

A. To pause operation for 15 seconds
B. To setup a delay of 15 days
C. To delay execution for 15 minutes
D. To postpone server restart by 15 hours

3. What could be a reason for an SQL developer to utilize 'waitfor delay'?

A. To permanently stop a transaction
B. To automatically perform a rollback
C. To simulate a time-consuming process during testing
D. To immediately fetch new data

4. What happens if 'waitfor delay' is used in a transaction block?

A. Delay has no effect within transactions
B. The transaction is paused, potentially locking resources
C. The transaction is cancelled
D. The transaction commits immediately